

APPENDIX

SUMMARY OF THE NOVEL

Darcy Archer is a thirty-three-year-old woman who lives in a small apartment in New York City. Her parents died in an accident when she was twelve, which made her have to live with her aunt Katherine who was too interested in Darcy's career life and even general. Darcy worked in a Chaucer's bookshop as a manager for six years after working in a magazine with her aunt.

One day when Darcy left for work on a bicycle, she crashed into a man named Aidan Harris. The accident they experienced made Aidan lose his memory. He lost his identity, individual memories, personality, address, loved ones and others. Darcy tries to help Aidan restore his memory by finding information about himself and those closest to him and looking after his dog Bailey instead.

In her efforts to help Aidan, Darcy imagined Aidan as some enigmatic romantic hero, a star in Darcy's mysterious love story. It was her love for books that made Darcy have a narrative like that in his head. But apparently Darcy knew that Aidan was just an ordinary man with a normal life. He has a wife who turns out to be separated and a daughter.

When Aidan was discharged from the hospital and returned to his home that matched the address on his identity card, he remembered everything. But one day, suddenly Aidan came to where Darcy worked. They become more intimate and eventually they live together with Aidan's daughter.