

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION

This chapter deals with the conclusion of the thesis. Sammy as the main character of William Sleator's Fingers is jealous, resentful, and cruel to his younger brother in – law, Humphrey. Sammy's jealousy comes from the fact when his parents only care and love Humphrey. This situation makes Sammy is so disappointed. Sammy's resent comes from the fact that people only love Humphrey and admire Humphrey without knowing that Sammy is also a talented musician. This makes Sammy is so resentful to Humphrey. Sammy's cruelty is caused by the fact that Sammy can release his emotion and resent so Sammy makes Humphrey as the victim of all of them. Sammy tortures Humphrey, mocks Humphrey, and Sammy also persuades Bridget to stop Humphrey's performance at first. Many ways Sammy uses to take his revenge to Humphrey but in the process of Sammy's character development everything, however, becomes different when Sammy and Humphrey fight each other. They argue and Sammy cannot accept when Humphrey humiliates him as a failing musician. Finally, Sammy's anger explodes and he reveals the big secret of Humphrey's career. Sammy lets Humphrey know that the ghost of Lazlo Magyar and the composition are faked and does not come from Lazlo Magyar. It is very hurting and disappointing for Humphrey of his self-confidences as a popular musician. After that event, Humphrey runs away from his family. Finally, Sammy misses Humphrey's figure very much. He tries to find Humphrey because Sammy is very worried about Humphrey and he realizes that Humphrey is the only one person who he loves. After that, Sammy is so regretful of his action, and he looks for Humphrey until he finds Humphrey and says sorry for his bad treatment to Humphrey.

From the analysis of Sammy's character development, it can be concluded that Sammy is a dynamic and round character. There is a change and development of his character in the novel. Sammy experiences big character development in the story starting from his jealousy, resent, and cruelty to Humphrey's regret, love and worry to Humphrey.
