

APPENDIX I

SYNOPSIS OF THE NOVEL

This novel tells about two twin sisters Cath and Wren who are fans of Simon Snow. Cath is the identical and shy twin of her sister. Cath is a talented writer, and her hobby is writing fanfiction. In her family, Cath is close to her father and sister. Being a teenager who is just entering the campus world is certainly not easy. She is shy and only has one person she can trust, Wren, her twin. However, it turns out that Wren chose to "separate" from Cath while on campus. Wren doesn't want to write Simon Snow fanfiction with Cath anymore, she doesn't care anymore about the character in the story that she used to love so much. She had a new roommate, Reagan, and Reagan often brought her boyfriend a room called Levi. At first Levi's presence often made Cath uncomfortable and uncomfortable being in the room. However, over time Cath began to get used to Levi's presence. In class, Cath also often does assignments with Nick. This is where Cath started life as a student reluctantly. Meanwhile, before they finish college, Cath's father experiences a bipolar episode, and Cath is accidentally forced to cancel exams and final assignments to take care of her father. Cath and her sister are meet at the hospital after Wren's alcohol poisoning. Cath meets her mother there, who had abandoned them years before. However, Cath struggles to complete her studies by writing her original short stories

APPENDIX II

BIOGRAPHY OF THE AUTHOR

Rainbow Rowell born on February 24, 1973 is an American writer known for her contemporary novels such as Eleanor & Park (2012), Fangirl (2013) and Carry On (2015) which have received much acclaim. Rainbow Rowell is known as a popular young adult genre writer. Rowell is a graduate of the University of Nebraska Lincoln, Bachelor of Arts in 1995

She worked as a columnist and advertising copywriter for the Omaha World-Herald from 1995 to 2012. She then worked for an advertising agency while writing The Appendix, her first book published. In 2011, Rowell participated in National Novel Writing Month, completing the first draft of her YA novel Fangirl. Rowell's third novel, Fangirl, was released in 2013, following the hugely successful YA novel Eleanor & Park. Rowell's fourth novel, Landline, was another "adult" fiction about a couple dealing with marital problems. Carry On, her sixth novel, is linked to Fangirl since it follows the story of the fictional characters who are in love with the protagonists of Fangirl. The sequel to Carry On, Wayward Son, released in 2020. Rowell, a lifetime comic book fan, was given the opportunity to work in the comics industry in 2017. She and artist Kris Anka are the creative geniuses behind Marvel Comics' relaunch of the cult classic Runaways. Rowell also announced a collaboration with illustrator Faith Erin Hicks to publish two comic novels in 2017. The first, Pumpkinheads, released in 2019. Her favorite author is John Irving. She is a mother of 2 sons. She lives in Nebraska with her little family.

