ABSTRACT

This research examines the factors that cause criminal acts of violence against children in Lembata Regency. Data from the Lembata District Court shows a drastic increase in cases of child violence, from 8 cases in 2019 to 24 cases in 2023. The method used is empirical legal research with sociological and legal anthropology approaches, including observation, interviews with perpetrators, and study of court documents. The research results revealed that the internal factor that causes violence is the psychological condition of the perpetrator. Meanwhile, external factors include economic difficulties, low levels of education, and the social environment. The form of violence that often occurs is sexual violence such as child molestation. These findings show the importance of stricter law enforcement with appropriate punishment for perpetrators in accordance with applicable regulations to provide a deterrent effect. Abstract

This research examines the factors that cause criminal acts of violence against children in Lembata Regency. Data from the Lembata District Court shows a drastic increase in cases of child violence. The method used is empirical legal research with a sociology and legal anthropology approach, including observation, interviews with perpetrators, and study of court documents. The research results show that violence against children occurs due to internal and external factors. The internal factor that causes violence is the psychological condition of the perpetrator. Meanwhile, external factors include economic difficulties, low levels of education, and the social environment. The form of violence that often occurs is sexual violence such as child molestation. These findings show the importance of stricter law enforcement with appropriate punishment for perpetrators in accordance with applicable regulations to provide a deterrent effect. Public education about child protection, as well as helping services for victims are also needed to overcome the problem of violence against children. This research concludes that efforts from various parties are needed to prevent and handle cases of child violence in Lembata Regency.

Abstrak

Penelitian ini mengkaji faktor-faktor penyebab terjadinya tindak pidana kekerasan terhadap anak di Kabupaten Lembata. Data dari Pengadilan Negeri Lembata menunjukkan peningkatan drastis kasus kekerasan anak. Metode yang digunakan adalah penelitian hukum empiris dengan pendekatan sosiologi dan antropologi hukum, meliputi observasi, wawancara dengan pelaku, dan studi dokumen pengadilan. Hasil penelitian menunjukkan bahwa kekerasan pada anak terjadi karena faktor internal dan eksternal. Temuan ini menunjukkan pentingnya penegakan hukum yang lebih ketat dengan hukuman setimpal bagi pelaku sesuai ketentuan berlaku untuk memberikan efek jera. Edukasi masyarakat tentang perlindungan anak, serta penyediaan layanan pendampingan bagi korban juga diperlukan untuk mengatasi permasalahan kekerasan terhadap anak. Penelitian ini menyimpulkan bahwa upaya dari berbagai pihak sangat dibutuhkan dalam mencegah dan menangani kasus kekerasan anak di Kabupaten Lembata.
